Viva la Música Club grew out of the enthusiasm expressed by members of the Hispano-American community who attended the Seattle Symphony's Viva la Música Festival in May 2003. Over eight years later Viva continues to bring Hispanics/Latin@s together in celebration of music and culture.

Viva la Música Club (Viva) works to encourage Puget Sound Hispanics/Latin@s to support Seattle Symphony performances, education & community programs and to introduce relevant cultural perspectives to the Seattle Symphony.

Viva members hope to make symphonic music more accessible to new audiences, grow the community of classical music fans and introduce Iberian and Latin American performers and composers to the Seattle Symphony.

Viva serves as a vehicle to bring concert goers together before, during and after performances. Together members have the opportunity to meet the performers, make new friends, learn more about and of course, enjoy the music!
